Live in the Big Mother house

KIDDIE-cams are being installed by Irish creches so parents can keep an eye on their offspring at work. Daycare's answer to Big Brother is the brainchild of Cocoon Childcare, which has put webcams in six creches in Dublin, Wicklow and Kildare. Parents can log into a secure website to see what is happening live on the playroom floor in real time. But unlike the real Big Brother, Cocoon boss Robert Buckley insisted the cameras are not there to allow parents to 'evict' staff, or other children. They are to remove the anxiety felt by parents leaving their children in creches, he said.
